This inauguration was attended by Teacher in Charge, all faculty members, interested students and all interested persons. The total number of people attending this webinar was Fifty-three. Mr. Dibyendu Biswas, Assistant Professor, department of Sanskrit, Bagnan College, West Bengal had delivered his enlightened lecture on 'Ancient Indian stage designing, arrangements and performance traditions as portrayed in Nāṭyaśāstra'. He says that the contents of the Natyashastra are in part theatrical manual, part philosophy of aesthetics, part mythological history and part theology. It is the oldest surviving encyclopedic treatise on dramaturgy from India, with sections on the theory and practice of various performance arts. The text extends its reach into asking and understanding the goals of performance arts, the nature of the playwright, the artists and the spectators, their intimate relationship during the performance. Natya topics as envisioned in this text include what in western performing arts would include drama, dance, theatre, poetry and music. The text integrate sits aesthetics, axiology and description of arts with mythologies associated with Hindu Devas and Devis. Performance arts,
